THINGS TO KNOW

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT, REPORTER

It's been a week since the NYPD first shared police sketches of two women whose bodies were found washed up on the banks of the Hudson River in Manhattan. Officials have since identified the women as two sisters from Saudi Arabia, but not much else is known about their mysterious deaths. Police continue to investigate and have once again asked for the public's help with any information. Read more about what we know about the sisters inside and at metro.us.

WHITEY'S DEATH BEING PROBED AS HOMICIDE

IProsecutors are investigating Boston gangster James "Whitey" Bulger's death as a homicide, officials said on Wednesday, a day after his bloodied body was discovered at a West Virginia federal prison. "The United States Attorney's Office and the FBI are investigating the death of James Bulger as a homicide," the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Northern District of West Virginia said in a statement. The office declined to provide further details. Bulger, 89, had lived a double life as one of Boston's most notorious mobsters and as a secret Federal Bureau of Investigation informant before going on the run for 16 years. Bulger had been transferred a day earlier in a wheelchair to the high-security Hazelton penitentiary in West Virginia, a prison employee briefed on the matter said on Tuesday. Two men were seen on surveillance footage entering Bulger's cell, the prison employee said. Bulger's body was later discovered wrapped in a sheet, the employee said, and had been beaten so badly that blood had come out of his ears.

OPRAH ENDORSES ABRAMS FOR GEORGIA GOVERNOR

2 Oprah Winfrey plans to lend her star power to Georgia Democrat Stacey Abrams' quest to become the nation's first black female governor at a couple of appearances in the state on Thursday. After a brief flirtation earlier this year with a run for the White House in 2020, the media mogul, who has long associated herself with Democratic Party causes, has instead thrown her influence into a race that has become a flash point for accusations of voter suppression. Abrams' Republican rival, Brian Kemp, serves as Georgia secretary of state. Earlier this month, a coalition of state civil rights groups sued Kemp, accusing him of trying to depress minority voter turnout to improve his chances of winning. On Monday, former President and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter asked Kemp to step down as secretary of state since he was running for governor. Abrams' campaign said she would appear with Winfrey in Cobb and DeKalb counties for a discussion on "the critical value of women in leadership and what is at stake for our communities in the election."

TRUMP HARDENS STANCE ON MEXICO BORDER

4 President Donald Trump said on Wednesday the United States could send as many as 15,000 troops to the border with Mexico, as he hardens his stance against a caravan of migrants fleeing violence and poverty in Central America. The numbers cited by Trump are significantly higher than defense officials have disclosed. The Pentagon said on Monday it was deploying more than 5,200 troops to the border but that the number would rise. On Wednesday, it said more than 7,000 troops would support the Department of Homeland Security along the border. Several groups, including the American Civil Liberties Union, have accused Trump of politicizing the military ahead of next week's congressional elections with his plans to use active military personnel to buttress border patrol efforts. "As far as the caravan is concerned, our military is out. ... We'll go up to anywhere between 10,000 and 15,000 military personnel, on top of Border Patrol, ICE and everybody else at the border," Trump told reporters at the White House. Trump did not say how many of those 15,000 would be National Guard.

RARE NATO-RUSSIA TALKS ADDRESS MILITARY DRILLS

5 NATO and Russia envoys on Wednesday discussed their respective large-scale military exercises and a Cold War-era missile treaty that Washington vows to quit over accusations of Russian non-compliance, the Western alliance said. The talks, the first between the former Cold War foes since May, came against a backdrop of renewed tensions between the West and Russia, most notably over Moscow's 2014 annexation of Crimea and involvement in eastern Ukraine. A NATO statement said the sides had an "open exchange" of views on Ukraine, Russia's Vostok military exercises and NATO's ongoing Trident Juncture drills, as well as on Afghanistan and hybrid security threats. NATO this month launched its largest exercises since the Cold War in Norway, whose non-NATO Nordic neighbors Sweden and Finland have drawn closer to the alliance since being spooked by Russia's role in the turmoil in Ukraine. NATO troops are maneuvering close to the borders of Russia, which held its huge annual Vostok military drill in September. The two are regularly irked by each other's exercises, where a show of force and deterrence play a major role.

Are you ready for Election Day in New York City?

NYC expands Election Day interpretation services at 100 polling sites

New York City will offer interpretation services in the six most commonly spoken non-English languages to help residents on Election Day.

kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Election Day 2018 is around the corner, and before New Yorkers head to the polls, officials are enacting efforts to make voting easier for limited-English-speaking voters.

Mayor Bill de Blasio and the New York City Council announced on Monday that the administration will provide interpretation services at 100 New York City polling sites on Election Day.

Nearly half — 49 percent — of all New York City residents speak a language other than English at home, according to 2017 Census Bureau data. That's about four million people in total in all of New York City, and Queens Borough President Melinda Katz noted that in Queens alone, more than 1.3 million people speak a language other than English at home.

With millions of residents possibly being more comfortable communicating in a language other than English, officials want to ensure that the act of voting on Election Day is easy for all New Yorkers.

Currently, the New York City Board of Elections provides interpretation services at certain poll sites in Spanish, Mandarin, Cantonese, Korean and Bangla, as required by the Voting Rights Act.

That doesn't cover the most commonly spoken languages in New York City, though, so officials are filling that gap by providing Election Day interpretation services in Russian, Haitian Creole, Italian, Arabic, Polish and Yiddish — the six most commonly spoken languages among limited-English-proficient New York City voters.

"The language you speak and understand should not be a barrier to civic participation," de Blasio said in a statement. "Voting should be an easy task, and we're upholding that truth by identifying and filling gaps in communities where translation services are needed."

City interpreters will have to be 101 feet away from poll sites, though, to comply with Board of Election specifications, the city said. BOE rules prohibit electioneering within 100 feet of poll sites; a city official did not immediately respond to a request for comment asking how interpretation services qualify as electioneering.

Erika Lorshbough, legislative counsel at the NYCLU, countered the idea that those who provide interpretation services should have to stay so far from poll sites.

"Language assistance services are not electioneering and should not be treated as such," she said in an email. "It is unfortunate that the NYC Board of Elections has decided to reprise its 2017 policy to keep city-sponsored interpreters 100 feet from the polls. Voters should know that they can invite an outside interpreter, family member or friend into the polling place to assist them in casting their vote, and that ballot-marking machines in many polling places also provide language assistance."

The 100 polling sites with these increased Election Day interpretation options are located throughout Brooklyn, Queens and Staten Island, according to the city.

What's driving voters to the polls?

The 2018 midterm elections are expected to have the highest participation rate in decades.

ANNA HARSTEDT
letters@metro.us

With less than one week to go before the midterm elections, voter enthusiasm is at its highest level during any midterm in more than two decades.

According to a recent study by University of Florida Professor Michael McDonald, 45 to 50 percent of eligible voters will participate in this year's midterm elections. Such a high number of voter participation hasn't been seen since 1966, when a record 49 percent voted in a midterm.

So, what's driving voters to the polls? A host of issues including controversial comments made by President Donald Trump on topics like the global economy, national security, women's rights, and immigration have polarized both Democrats and Republicans in this year's election.

Both Republicans and Democrats have hyped the importance of the midterm elections, with President Donald Trump saying it "may be the most important midterm election that anybody can remember."

A recent study by Pew Research Center found that the increase was greater on the Democratic side. Around 55 percent of people between the ages of 18 to 29 are expected to vote, with gun laws considered to be one of the most important questions, according to a poll by NBC News.

"More than ever, young voters have shown they are ready to stand up and be heard," Institute of Politics Director Mark Gearan said in a statement.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers “Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Paper clip likely culprit in NYPD body cam blast

Officials detailed the findings of a forensic report on a NYPD officer's body camera which caught fire and exploded.

kristin.toussaint@metro.us

GETTY IMAGES

Officials believe that an NYPD body camera exploded earlier this month because of damage caused by the process of resetting the camera with a paper clip, according to an independent forensic report.

NYPD Deputy Commissioner of Information Technology Jessica Tisch released the findings at an unrelated press conference on Tuesday.

The forensic investigator found that the explosion was likely the result of the lithium ion polymer battery inside the Vievu LE5 body camera, Tisch read from the report.

There was no indication that the device's failure stemmed from the circuit board, USB port or the wires that bring battery power to the circuit board, and there was no evidence that the camera was crushed or otherwise physically damaged prior to catching fire.

The investigator "strongly suspects" that the reset button became dislodged by the paper clip, leading to the explosion.

"The LE5s have a recessed reset button that officers access by sticking a paper clip inside a small hole at the bottom of the camera," said Tisch. "The officer involved in this incident reported attempting to use the paper clip, as he was instructed to do, to reset the camera two times on the Friday evening prior to the incident, which occurred then on his next tour on Saturday, Oct. 20."

After the paper clip dislodged the button (called the "microswitch" by the investigator) two possible things happened next, according to the report. The dislodged piece either scraped the lithium polymer battery, Tisch said, or once the microswitch was dislodged, the paper clip was able to pierce the battery.

The officer reported hearing a rattling sound inside the body camera before smelling smoke, which the forensic analysis says was likely the reset button loose inside the device.

New charges filed as Pittsburgh buries three more shooting victims

Robert Bowers was indicted on 44 counts by a grand jury.

Federal prosecutors added more charges, including religious hate crimes, against the man accused of killing 11 Jews in a Pittsburgh synagogue, according to an indictment filed on Wednesday, as the city held funerals for three more victims.

"Today begins the process of seeking justice for the victims of these hateful acts," U.S. Attorney Scott Brady said in a statement, adding that his office "will spare no resource" to do so.

Eleven worshippers were gunned down on Saturday morning by a man who stormed into the Tree of Life synagogue and opened fire, yelling anti-Semitic statements including "All Jews must die."

The attack, believed to be the deadliest against Jews in the United States in recent history, has fueled a fierce political debate about white nationalism and anti-Semitism ahead of hotly contested U.S. congressional elections next week.

Mourners gathered for the funerals of Melvin Wax, 88, who was leading Sabbath services when the attack began; retired real estate agent Irving Younger, 69; and retired university researcher Joyce Fienberg, 75.

The after-effects of the tragedy still pervaded life on Wednesday in the Squirrel Hill neighborhood where the synagogue is located.

In coffee shops, customers talked about the victims they knew, remembering them as civic-minded, kind and pillars of the community. In the street, friends embraced and comforted one another during the period of raw grief.

Libby Zal said that Younger was such a fixture in Squirrel Hill that a local store he frequented would Prosecutors have said they will seek the death penalty.

The synagogue attack has heightened a national debate over President Donald Trump's rhetoric, which critics say has contributed to a surge in white-nationalist and neo-Nazi activity. His administration denies he has encouraged far-right extremism and is instead attempting to unify America.

Amid the first funerals for victims on Tuesday, Trump visited Tree of Life. Thousands protested his presence in the city, accusing him of using rhetoric that has fueled anti-Semitism in America.

Several thousand protesters, an ethnically mixed crowd of all ages, held an anti-Trump rally about a block away from the synagogue just as his visit began, singing Old Testament psalms and carrying signs with such slogans as: "We build bridges not walls." REUTERS

Get ready for the big race

This Sunday is the one 50,000 runners have been training for all year: the 2018 NYC Marathon. Here's everything you need to know.

lenyon.whitaker@metro.us

The biggest day of racing on the New York calendar is this Sunday, when the 2018 edition of the NYC Marathon returns to the streets of all five boroughs.

The 2018 TCS New York City Marathon will start on Staten Island, with about 50,000 runners and hundreds of thousands more people cheering them on as they make their way across the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge to the finish line in Central Park.

Whether you're participating in the 26.2-mile trek, supporting the participants or will be in the city this Sunday, you need to have a plan. So we've put together a guide to all the necessary details, including start times, route, how to watch, and street closures.

It's time for the race

The official start time for the 2018 NYC Marathon is 8:30 a.m., but there are different start times for different divisions and waves.

What's the route?

Runners will begin on Staten Island and cross the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge, then make their way through Brooklyn, Queens, Manhattan, the Bronx, and back into Manhattan down Fifth Avenue to finish on the southwestern end of Central Park.

Additional information can be found on the 2018 NYC Marathon spectator guide at tcsnycmarathon.org.

How to watch the NYC Marathon

If you're hoping to see a runner along the route, make sure you get their specific start time.

8:30 a.m. – Professional Wheelchair Division	9:20 a.m. – Professional Women
8:52 a.m. – Achilles Handcycle Category and Select Athletes with Disabilities	9:50 a.m. – Wave 1 (including Professional Men)
8:55 a.m. – Foot Locker Five-Borough Challenge	10:15 a.m. – Wave 2
	10:40 a.m. – Wave 3
	11:00 a.m. – Wave 4

Eat your way to victory

Whether or not you're running the 2018 NYC Marathon on Nov. 4, it's a good week to love carbs in the city. These NYC Marathon carbo-loading specials, like unlimited pasta and free beer, are not just for runners.

Bottomless pasta all weekend

For the ultimate pre-marathon carbo-load, you can't beat unlimited. Head into Tribeca's Church & Dey in the Millennium Hilton New York Downtown for their $25 Unlimited Pasta Dinner. From Nov. 2-4, enjoy bottomless bowls of cavatelli with shrimp, tricolor penne with basil pesto or rigatoni Bolognese.

55 Church St., hilton.com

Make it a double

Feelin' fancy? The Upper East Side's Regency Bar & Grill is doubling down on the carbs with rigatoni pomodoro and a pint of Brooklyn Lager for $26.20 all race weekend, Nov. 2-4. 540 Park Ave., loewshotels.com

Last-minute carb-up

In Lower Manhattan, the Conrad New York's Atrio restaurant is offering runners 30% off any pasta dish the night prior to the race and 20% off the bill for the entire table with a runner in the party on the day of the marathon. 102 North End Ave., conradnewyork.com

Doctor-recommended pasta

Upscale Italian spot Cardoncello DiVino has lined up a special carbo-loading menu for the night before the race, Nov. 3. Created with the help of the Italian Association for Health and Nutrition for optimal athletic output, the $48 three-course menu includes whole wheat cavatelli with broccoli rabe and pesto, and turkey breast with mashed potatoes. Want more pasta? Runners who return to Cardoncello on Monday, Nov. 5, get a 10% discount when they show their medal. 43 W. 27th St., cardoncellodivino.com

Go for the Gigante

The Fireman Hospital-ity Group is taking care of runners all weekend at all three of their Italian restaurants with a "Pasta Gigante" special: a 10-ounce portion of rigatoni tossed with pomodoro sauce and topped with fresh ricotta for $25. Nov. 2-4, Bond 45 (221 W. 46th St.), Café Fiorella, (1900 Broadway), Trattoria Dell'Arte (900 Seventh Ave.)

Pumpkin is still in season Santina's new executive chef, Ashley Eddie, has something for the carbo-loaders and those who can't get enough of pumpkins just because Halloween is over: the Pumpkin Pesto Rigatoni. The pesto is made with pumpkin seeds and pumpkin oil, with salata cheese sprinkled on top. 820 Washington St., santinanydc.com

Diane Lane on the 'strange and miraculous' story of 'House of Cards' season 6

The actress also opens up about wading into the world of television.

letters@metro.us

Diane Lane thinks it's "rather strange and miraculous that season 5 ended the way it did," not just because of what happened behind the scenes of "House of Cards" with Kevin Spacey's firing, but also in regards to what's happening in actual American politics right now.

Fans of the show already know what Lane is talking about, but for those of you who don't, here's a quick recap: President Claire Underwood (Robin Wright) has been sworn in following her husband Frank's (Spacey)

Diane Lane and Robin Wright square off in the final season of "House of Cards." ALL PHOTOS NETFLIX resignation. He attempts to control the situation behind the scenes and calls her at the White House, but Claire refuses him, turns to the camera and declares, "My turn."

Now that Frank has been killed off and Claire is in office, the upcoming sixth and final season will see her squaring off with Lane and Greg Kinnear as the wealthy Shepherd siblings Annette and Bill.

"It really teed up the opportunity for [showrunners Melissa James Gibson and Frank Pugliese] to be afforded the opportunity to revisit, reexamine and rewrite the last season," Lane tells Metro. "Because our hair was caught in the machine of the zeitgeist, and it forced the show to pause and reconvene. I think it's so lucky, what this show will wind up meaning historically."

"I just think it's really miraculous because had it been a few months later, I don't know what would have happened. We were all on standby," she continues. "But Netflix did the right thing by taking care of the crew and the hundreds of other employees in the meantime. I'm not 100 percent sure what some other house would have done with its people in this situation."

While the showrunners and writers' attempted to cover up the Spacey-sized hole with Diane Lane and Greg Kinnear play the wealthy Shepherd siblings Annette and Bill.

Lane and Kinnear's hiring, story-wise the Shepherds' grand entrance into the plot provides ample explanation for itself. The writing should obviously be credited, but so too should the actors, especially Lane. Whereas Kinnear's Bill is more of an obvious patriarch who knows how to throw his weight around, Annette is as cunning and capable as Claire.

"When a family has all this money and implied power, what are they doing with it? What can they do with it? Certainly, it's not unrealistic to think about these questions in terms of this country's history, politically," Lane says of the Shepherds. "I thought that Annette was coming to this from a perspective of comfort with her entitled experience and power. And we see it play out more and more throughout these eight episodes."

But what drew Lane to "House of Cards," specifically, and the wider world of television? Though known primarily for her many film roles, the actress has recently begun diving into TV with her "House of Cards" role, a part in "Mad Men" creator Matthew Weiner's cinematic "The Romanoffs" on Amazon, and FX's upcoming adaptation of the acclaimed graphic novel "Y: The Last Man."

"I just think it's good to go where the doors are opening for you, you know?" she explains. "There is a lot more available there, as far as the writing that's of interest to me. I think it explores women's experiences and perspectives more deeply."

The sixth and final season of "House of Cards" streams Friday on Netflix.

WE SHOULD OUTLAW BACKPACKS ON TRAINS
Of course you are entitled to carry your backpack on the subway. But the important question is, DO YOU REMOVE IT before entering the train?

Some of the backpacks are huge and take up space equal to a commuter! Now, if there are a lot of these inconsiderate people, then the rest of the commuters suffer. This brings me to another complaint I have: What about placing those useless platform controllers on the subway to monitor? Apply a law that commuters who don't remove their backpack will be fined, then enforce said law. Just saying.

Aries Pitch in and help out. Your loyalty and dedication will be impressive, and when you least expect it, rewards will come your way. Romance is on the rise.

Taurus Keep your life simple and your expenses down. Learn from the way others react to you and protect yourself against anyone trying to talk you out of something that belongs to you.

Gemini Make changes at home that will encourage stress relief. Comfort and convenience should be priorities. Fitness and proper diet will lead to better health.

Cancer Moodiness and overreaction will lead to isolation. Before making a fuss, find out exactly what happened. Acting on an assumption will lead to regret. Offer peace and love, not discord.

Leo Too much of anything will not end well. Mellow out and relax instead of trying to be in control of everything and everyone. It's your turn to take the back seat.

Virgo Silence is golden. Let your actions speak for you to make a difference in a situation involving someone you hold dear.

Libra Spice things up a bit. Love is on the rise, and participating in entertaining and mentally stimulating activities will lead to an interesting encounter with someone unique.

Scorpio If you fail to stand by your word, someone will notice. An interesting turn of events will develop if you make a personal change. Update your look, image or status.

Sagittarius You'll want to be on the move. Traveling, learning and meeting people from different walks of life will be informative and will spark your imagination. It's time to make a change!

Capricorn Spend less money, regardless of what other people want you to do. Charity begins at home, and making sure you have your expenses and loved ones covered should be your priority.

Aquarius Stick to your plans. Last-minute changes will leave you at a loss. Don't worry about the actions or choices of others; stay on course and don't go over budget.

Pisces People are likely to talk behind your back. Make a point to avoid gossip or people who are fishing for personal information that you shouldn't share. EUGENIA LAST

The start of the holidays

Halloween is done, which means it's truly the holiday season.

Here's our guide to November's best events.

EVA KIS

eva.kis@metro.us

Mustaches are the new fashion accessory

Men need to take better care of their health, and each year the Movember Foundation hopes to start that conversation by asking men to shave their facial hair and grow a mustache for a month, and women to urge the men in their lives to make health care appointments. To benefit the cause, the Movember Ball at Refinery Rooftop on Nov. 6 pits nine chefs against each other to find who makes the best meatballs — you try them all to pick the winner ($25). us.movember.com

Drink your apples responsibly

It's the height of the apple harvest, and Cider Week is your chance to take advantage of the season's bounty at events all over the city. New York state's cider scene is booming, and Cider Week celebrates the best, ranging from tastings and food pairings to panels and game nights. In addition to pairing dinners, tastings, brewer meet-and-greets and more, try more than 100 varieties in one place at the Lower East Side Cider Fest (Nov. 8). Nov. 2-11, ciderweeknyc.com

Human Rights Arts Festival PROVIDED

Look into the crystal ball

Interested in where food is heading? The annual Food Loves Tech convention returns to Brooklyn on Nov. 2-3, laying out a spread of the latest kitchen gadgets and the hottest new foods to sample, all to show how we'll be eating in the not-so-distant future. $75, foodlovestech.com

Ready, set, go!

November kicks off with the biggest race of the city's calendar: the TCS New York City Marathon, taking over the five boroughs on Nov. 4. Whether you need a place to carb-load before the race, wanna know where to cheer from the sidelines, or watch the race from home, we've got your guide.

It's officially silly season

The best of the comedy world takes over pretty much every stand-up venue during the New York Comedy Festival, returning Nov. 5-11 for a full seven-day schedule for the first time. They had to fit in more than 200 comedians presenting over 100 shows, after all, including names like Anthony Jeselnik, Conan O'Brien, David Cross and Tracy Morgan. nycomedyfestival.com

The best of the world's theater comes to NYC

The curators of the acclaimed Fringe Encore Series go all over the world to scout the best theater productions of the year, then bring them to SoHo Playhouse. This year's entries feature comedies, dramas, cabaret and even shadow puppetry from Edinburgh, Hollywood, Orlando, Toronto and some local stars, too. ### See all the holiday windows

Since Thanksgiving is just a general "hooray, it's fall!" holiday, the world has largely decided to skip right from Halloween decorations to Christmas in November. And there's no more spectacular display than the elaborate holiday windows that come to life in Midtown's department stores. Macy's will unveil its intergalactic-themed Christmas windows on Nov. 15, with the rest of the big names following soon after.

The turkey holiday is here

Thanksgiving is never just dinner in New York. For the most resilient, it begins the night before as they watch the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade balloons be inflated (Nov. 21). Then there's getting up crazy-early to stake out your spot on the route, followed by an incredible brunch before rolling right into an amazing Thanksgiving dinner spread, whether at a restaurant or home (Nov. 22). Gobble gobble!

The biggest shopping days of the year

This is the shopping holiday weekend you've been saving for all year: Black Friday (Nov. 23) and Cyber Monday (Nov. 26). We'll have roundups of all the best deals IRL and online, to help you make the most of these two retail holidays.

Rockefeller Center in all its splendor

It's not Christmas in New York until they light the Rockefeller Center Christmas tree, which happens on Nov. 28 (through Jan. 7, 2019) with the usual oversized fanfare. Celebrity performances have yet to be announced, but you know the drill: performances by the biggest pop stars, the most famous announcers, the Radio City Rockettes. And last, someone flips the most important switch of the holiday season.

The Medical Director of urology is David Shusterman, MD. Dr. Shusterman is a board certified urologist who specializes in state of the art compassionate kidney stone treatment.

Safe, effective ways to treat kidney stones

Anyone who has ever suffered from kidney stones knows just how painful it can be. It's little wonder that more than half a million people go to the emergency room for kidney stone problems every year, according to the National Kidney Foundation.

So what are kidney stones? They're essentially hard mineral deposits that form inside the kidneys. When the fluid in urine is unable to break them down, they'll pass through the ureter and bladder—which is generally a painful process. There's a wealth of anecdotal reports likening kidney stone pain to that of childbirth. The truth is that no two cases are alike, but early diagnosis is critical when it comes to getting ahead of it. Many times, this comes down to understanding the specific risk factors that might make you more likely to develop kidney stones. Family history, frequent dehydration, certain dietary issues, and obesity are all on the list. Board Certified Urologist Dr. David Shusterman of NY Urology takes a proactive approach. Thanks to a mix of preventative medicine and some simple lifestyle changes, you may be able to prevent kidney stones before they ever develop.

If a kidney stone is already in motion, Dr. Shusterman's expert team can quickly identify it using ultrasound imaging, then get things moving with innovative treatment options that have made NY Urology a nationally recognized leader in the field. He leads with holistic medicine with the goal being to break down kidney stones so that they can pass as naturally and easily as possible. NY Urology provides a cutting-edge, noninvasive treatment called extracorporeal shock wave lithotripsy (ESWL), which relies on sound waves to break apart the stones via focused vibrations.

The in-office procedure is completely safe, and recovery is typically pretty swift.

Another option is placing something called a nephrostomy tube into the kidneys. This plastic catheter essentially lets urine drain directly from the kidneys during the treatment process. The result is near-immediate pain relief because you're eliminating backed-up urine and helping things flow more easily. A ureteral stent works in much the same way, bolstering the body's ability to drain urine and, in turn, safely encouraging the natural healing process. The soft plastic stent is temporarily placed directly into the ureter to help urine flow more freely. When ureters are blocked up by kidney stones, pain and discomfort are on the horizon. Stents open these passages.

When all else fails, NY Urology also specializes in minimally invasive surgery using a device called a ureteroscopy to eliminate painful, stubborn kidney stones. Making its way through the urethra and bladder, and into the ureter, the device zeros in on the kidney stone and swiftly removes it. The best part is that it's a fairly straightforward outpatient procedure that requires no incisions. In extreme situations where the stone is too large to remove with a ureteroscopy, Dr. Shusterman may call on a more in-depth procedure that involves a small incision in the back. The upside here is that the success rate is high, helping patients safely get rid of large kidney stones in one fell swoop.

Whether you're looking to prevent kidney stones or address one that's already wreaking havoc, NY Urology is your best resource. Book an appointment today with Dr. Shusterman, located at 800 Second Avenue on the corner of 42nd Street. Call (212) 991-9991 and start mapping out a plan for living a pain-free life without kidney stones.

TRAVEL

The wildlife expert sat down with us to chat about his new show "Monster Encounters" on the Travel Channel, and sheds light on what really terrifies him.

patrick.king@metro.us

Wildlife expert Casey Anderson has seen it all. With his Nat Geo Wild series "Expedition Wild" and "America the Wild with Casey Anderson," the rugged and charming Anderson had made a reputation for immersing himself within the wilderness to unearth the truth about some of nature's best-kept secrets.

We caught up with Anderson to talk about his brand-new show "Monster Encounters" on the Travel Channel to see if he can explain the phenomenon behind man's fear of some of nature's "monsters" — and what actually scares him in life.

Do you think that people's original concepts of "monsters" throughout history had to deal with being surprised or startled by regular animals out in the wild? Like a bunny that had cast a large shadow or something?

I'm kind of impressed that you've gone so deep into this! But I also think it goes a lot deeper than that. I think the human animal — at some point — they even say you can get arachnophobia, the fear of a spider, even if you have never seen one before. But there was a time when humans were eaten by saber-toothed

A man with a beard and a backpack stands in a lush green forest, looking up.

this gene where you can inherit the fear of spiders. So it goes back to that behavioral conditioning of, there was one time where we walked on common ground with predators who could look at us like food. Then you take that fear or that innate fight-or-flight response that you would have of a “monster” or something that could easily kill you, and you evolve into the humans we are today. People back then had such an understanding of animals. They knew where not to go. They knew what each animal could do. Now we have this unknown. We still have some sort of fear where our brains sensationalize and anything is a spider. We don’t know what it is, and if we don’t know what it is, we are going to be afraid of it.

Even today, once in a while a shark will kill somebody or a grizzly bear will maul somebody. It's very rare and it's not what these animals do. But the headlines are all you hear about. You don't hear about great white sharks having fun today and eating seals. You hear about the surfer who got his arm ripped off or a grizzly bear who killed a camper. So, it's that broad stroke of the brush. Couple that with the unknown of what these animals really are and that deep-seeded fight-or-flight response. Now you've got this monster!

The brain and imagination just go crazy.

Was there a particular encounter with a scary animal in the wild that inspired your show, "Monster Encounters"?

With them to try and find their truth — every time I would walk away from the location, the “monster” was us in some aspect. I always kind of knew that. But it took going out there and tracking these monsters and elusive animals down and me living in the world for a little while and getting to know them to really hammer it home. I think that’s the one great thing about this show. You go into it looking for a monster and you come out with a real message. But not in a way saying, “Hey, you should go out and pet grizzly bears and high-five lions in Africa.” That’s not a responsible message. It’s more that these guys can do this and will do this but we’re causing that to happen. We need to change. We’ve forced

But at the same time, I don't want to become complacent because there have been times when I've been out in the wild and a there are those situations when a desperate male grizzly bear who is in the last years of his life and needs to eat and can't chase down elk calves and can't dig like he used to. He sees me standing there and says, "There's 200 pounds of protein that can't run very fast. I'm going to go over there to kill him and eat him." This is a very real thing that happened to me. He tried. That's a real-life monster that does actually exist. But it's a very rare situation — in fact, a situation that, more often than not, we as humans have forced these animals to go into — that desperation mode — by taking away their habitat and their food sources, and in turn backing them into a corner.

They've become man-made monsters in a way?

made monsters in a way. They're in a survival moment. When those "monster" moments happen, it's almost always because they're in desperation and survival mode, because we've taken everything away from them. Going out there and trying to cure these myths and shining a light on these monsters and coming face-to-face with them to try and find their truth — every time I would walk away from the location, the "monster" was us in some aspect. I always kind of knew that. But it took going out there and tracking these monsters and elusive animals down and me living in the world for a little while and getting to know them to really hammer it home. I think that's the one great thing about this show. You go into it looking for a monster and you come out with a real message. But not in a way saying, "Hey, you should go out and pet grizzly bears and high-five lions in Africa." That's not a responsible message. It's more that these guys can do this and will do this but we're causing that to happen. We need to change. We've forced them to adapt to the point where they can't adapt anymore. Now it's our turn. Then we can co-exist with these animals.

Outside of all of these “Monster Encounters,” what terrifies you the most in life?

That's easy. The thing that terrifies me the most is getting a real job! I have the greatest job in the world.

Nelson's hot start pacing Isles

The enigmatic forward's solid start played a big role in New York's surprising opening month.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

that Nelson has the skill set to be a big offensive contributor, but he's been unable to put it all together during his first five years in the league.

He's hit the 20-goal mark just three times but has never had more than 45 points in a season as his playmaking abilities and puck management skills have lagged.

With one more chance given to him by the new regime of Lou Lamoriello and Barry Trotz, Nelson has spent time on both the first and second lines (mostly on the latter) as the Islanders attempt to find that scoring touch.

It's safe to say that Islanders fans can officially label the opening month of the season "Brocktoberfest," as popularized by the ever-so-witty faction of social media labeled "Isles Twitter."

Nelson has five goals in his last five games, including a pair on Saturday in a 6-1 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers. He also made his way onto the scoresheet on Tuesday night in a surprising 6-3 win in Pittsburgh against the Flyers.

The tally saw his October end with six goals and an assist as he continues to play his best hockey during the opening month of the season.

In 60 career games during the month Nelson has 23 goals and 21 assists. He has no more than 16 goals (in 67 games in December and 62 games in January) and 14 assists (in 65 career November games) in any other month.

The Islanders, who are fresh off a three-game road sweep of the Flyers, Carolina Hurricanes and Penguins, will be hoping that Nelson's production will carry through to the rest of the season. It was a major reason why they were able to get through a brutal opening schedule that saw them play eight road games in their first 11 with a 6-4-1 record.

If he can, the Islanders will keep surprising people as Trotz and Co.'s win on Tuesday night ensured a 4-0 start in division play for the first time since the 1982-83 season.
